Think Pacific Volunteering Scheme in Fiji – volunteering and dissertation research.

During my trip to Fiji, I taught young children English. This aided my academic studies (linguistics) as I now have a better understanding of language and how young children acquire a second language (what methods work for them etc)
I also stayed with a host family in a rural village where I recorded the speech of native Fijians in order to analyse it back in England.

This is a photo of me teaching my class in Fiji.
